Tony Petroutsas

Date of birth: June 14, 1983

Nationality: Canadian

Passport number: W0225061

I'm a Geography/Environmental Studies graduate student and currently a volunteer for BCSEA Victoria branch and the University of Victoria's Common Energy project. I have experience working with a variety of cultures from all around the world. I speak Fluent English/French and partial Greek. I have solid interpersonal skills and the ability to work very well in a team. I have done events coordination and public outreach workshops to students across Victoria about climate change literacy and sustainability, etc. My University degree contains an environment science background and has allowed me to work and volunteer in the fields of climate change, marine and terrestrial conservation, ecological interpretation, environmental health and renewable energy.

I am highly motivated, creative, resourceful and a strategic thinker. I have experience working with First Nations, Europeans and people from all around the world. I have been through significant cultural changes and adapted to working with people from all over the world. I have taken several training workshops on Environmental health, cross-cultural communication, urban planning and ecological restoration. I have been involved with campaign development and/or strategic planning experience with the University of Victoria's Common energy project. I have excellent oral, written and communication skills.
